Dear Mary,

I am writing to acknowledge receipt of the University Senate's report and resolution on Charge S-2016: Lessons Learned from University-wide Online Learning. I am grateful to the Instruction, Curricula and Advising Committee for its thorough exploration of lessons learned as we moved to remote learning from the start of the pandemic. You have offered a wide array of recommendations, which I have shared with Executive Vice President Moghe, Senior Vice President Norin, and other members of the central administration responsible for areas affected by the report's recommendations.

As you know, we continue working hard to provide the best possible experience for students as they navigate the challenges of remote learning. In some cases, we have taken steps either in the spirit of or to the letter of your recommendations, such as the decision to allow students to take some or all courses on a P/NC basis through the spring. I appreciate the Senate's strong concern for the welfare of our students and faculty as we continue to pursue Rutgers' mission in the midst of the pandemic.

Sincerely,

Jonathan Holloway
President & University Professor
